Profile

Michelle has a long history with Hinsdale Orthopaedics/IBJ, from being a teenage patient with a sports injury, to nearly two decades of employment. She completed her undergraduate degree at Truman State University, studying Exercise Science. She then attended Washington University in St. Louis for her Master of Science in Physical Therapy. Since 2002, she has taken on many roles at Hinsdale Orthopaedics, including leadership, compliance, and specialty training. She currently serves as a Pre-op Specialist and Orthosync Case Manager.

Michelle has a passion for caring for others. She loves the challenges and rewards that come with helping patients through some of the hardest times of their lives. In her youth, she tackled active adventures like climbing Mt Kilimanjaro, skydiving in the Swiss Alps, and running the Chicago Marathon. These days, she enjoys spending quality time with her husband and 3 young daughters.
