Profile

Miranda Lipp, OTR/L, is a graduate of Indiana State University's Department of Occupational Therapy in 2019. Since her advanced upper extremity course in graduate school, and a very encouraging CHT instructor, she has been deeply fascinated by all things upper extremity rehabilitation. Further validation of her career path came from a wonderful experience during a clinical rotation at the University of Chicago Medicine in Hand Therapy.

Miranda is committed to life-long learning with the goal of learning new techniques to further progress herself as a clinician. She has a special interest in fabricating custom orthosis for a wide variety of patient populations and diagnosis. She is thrilled to join the IBJI team alongside amazing clinicians and eventually fulfill her dream of becoming a certified hand therapist.

Outside the clinic, she enjoys spending time with her family and friends, traveling and watching copious amounts of Friends reruns.
