Profile

Kailey is a graduate of Carroll University's Doctorate of Physical Therapy program. She has been practicing since 2017 and joined IBJI in September of 2018. Kailey enjoys working with a wide variety of patients including those with orthopedic conditions, chronic pain, post-op replacements, and neurological diagnoses.

Kailey chose to pursue a career as a physical therapist after she saw the difference physical therapy had made after experiencing an injury herself. Kailey's main goals include assisting patients in returning to activities they enjoy while promoting patient independence and a healthy lifestyle. She empowers her patients through education and encourages their involvement in decision-making to guide them in achieving their goals.

Kailey has a special interest in balance training and fall prevention. She has been actively involved in Stepping On, a program geared towards fall prevention in the geriatric population. In her free time, Kailey enjoys playing and coaching volleyball and spending time with friends and family.
