Profile

Danielle O'Donnell, MS, OTR/L, graduated from Elmhurst College in 2019. She went to Western Michigan University for her undergraduate studies, where her major was interdisciplinary health services, and minors included holistic health and wellness, and psychology. She started to have an interest in upper extremity rehab when she experienced OT from the patient aspect. Clinical experiences include early intervention and outpatient hand therapy. She has been working at IBJI since 2020. Danielle is a member of ASHT, the Chicago Metro Hand Study Group, and is CPR certified. She has great interest in IASTM, kinesiotaping and manual techniques to better quality of life.

Danielle's engagement in volleyball, kickball, gymnastics, and soccer have shaped her interest in the outpatient orthopedic setting. She enjoys exploring new restaurants, traveling, and spending time with family.
