Profile

Patrick Wales received his Doctor of Physical Therapy degree from Duke University's School of Medicine. After school, he moved from Durham back to his roots in Illinois. He currently lives in Chicago with his wife, Aubrey, and his dog, Jackson. In his free time he loves to play guitar, watch Chicago sports, and take his pup on nature walks. He has a lifetime goal of traveling to all 50 U.S. states!

From a young age, Patrick knew he wanted to be a Physical Therapist. He loves to educate and inspire his patients to obtain their highest quality of life. He believes in working as a team and taking a holistic approach to patient-centered care. Patrick has experience treating General Orthopedics, Neurodevelopmental Pediatrics, Geriatric Neurology, and Lymphedema/Integumentary Care. His interests lie in Post-Op Orthopedics and Chronic Pain.
